Progress

During the first quarter, the Martin Luther King Sunday School has experienced measurable progress. Through the aid of the Holy Spirit, our Sunday School is grateful for the support of our faithful teaching staff who consists of Sister Gila Curl, Deacon Dwight Graves, Deacon Adrienne Lawrence, Brother Donald Leonard, Rev. Toni Brooker, Sister Jeanette Frazer, Sister Eleanora Northington, Sister Crystal Bolts, Sister Deloris Gillis and with the committed support of Deacon Mavis Corsey (secretary/treasurer) the assistance of Deacon Trolice Flavors (van ministry) and our Assistant Superintendent Sister Crystal Bolts. Some of us are serving in triplicate capacity.

We are happy to have Minister Anttimo Bennett added to our teaching staff. Minister Anttimo Bennett is Sister Eleanor Northington's assistant teacher.

There has been a consistent growth in Martin Luther King Jr. Sunday School attendance. Moreover, our teachers are still excited with the challenge of the increased class room participants.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Sunday School has been running smoothly with crafts, fun interactive lessons and treats donated by teachers and church members.

Our Sunday school books for the first quarter are here.

Purpose

Challenges to Meeting Our Goal for 2017

The necessities of reaching Martin Luther King Jr's Sunday School goals are to recruit more teachers, teachers assistants, care callers, and other support staff. Our aim is to have the largest Sunday School in the region, the best, the brightest teachers and students this region has ever seen. To do this, we must increase prayer, training, increase our number of committed teachers, support staff, facilitators and care callers. A major proposal is underway to catapult our efforts to make educating and ministry to youth and adults at Martin Luther King Jr. church a goal standard.

With creativity, rewards and enthusiasm, we are on the mark of achieving our 500 Mission goal.
